Stephen G. Carroll to Assist

Program

PARENTS IN SOLEBURY

Planning Group Decide to Purchase $500 Worth of Aerial Maps

DOYLESTOWN, Sept. 6.—Stephen G. Carroll, director of the Northern Westchester, New York, joint planning program, has offered to aid the Bucks County Planning Commission in setting up its staff and department. This was announced at a meeting of the Bucks County Planning Commission held Tuesday. Carroll's parents live in Solebury Township.

Declaring that the Fairless Steel Plant in Falls Township will be the "big bombshell," Carroll spoke to Simon K. Moyer, president of Bucks County Commissioners.

"Bucks county, most of it, still remains a lovely, rural area. It has fertile rolling farm country, scenic beauty in the Delaware River Valley and the charm of Colonial homes all of which must be preserved if Bucks county is to keep its present beauty," said Director Carroll.

Commissioner Moyer reported that the County Commissioners decided to purchase $500 worth of aerial maps of the lower section of the county which can also be used in connection with the study being made by Robert B. Mitchell, head of the Department of Urban Studies, University of Pennsylvania. The County Commissioners hope to have aerial maps taken of the entire county.

Regret was expressed that William J. Levitt, of Levitt & Son, was not able to attend because his plans for the building of a 16,000 garden-community house development in Bristol township and Falls township have not been entirely completed.

Qualifications of a candidate for a member of the directors' planning board staff were discussed.

THE WAR

TOKYO—An air-supported relief column rescued an Allied unit (trapped by a surprise Red attack) in a sudden outbreak of bitter fighting on the west Korean front tonight. While Red leaders considered an Allied demand to change the location of the bogged-down truce parley, a tank-supported Chinese Red regiment launched the attack before dawn this morning on the west bank of the Ijin river. One Allied unit was cut off, but Allied planes rose to the attack and blasted the Red troops to clear a path for the ground rescue unit by nightfall.

COUNTERFEITER KEEPS HIS WORD TO RETURN

DeShelley Blended Skills to Make Almost Perfect
Bank Notes

NOW IN ATLANTA 'PEN'

Handsome Luis Eduardo DeShelley went to the College of Albert LeGrande in his native Venezuela and studied painting, sculpture, chemistry and engraving. Then he blended his expert knowledge into a talent for turning out almost perfect bogus American bills. And when he was captured, he boasted "I shall be back." He kept his word, but the Secret Service agent who had once run him down slipped the handcuffs on him a second time. James Lee tells the story in the following article, third in a series obtained from the files of the Secret Service.

By James Lee
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—(INS)—A handsome, college-bred young Venezuelan with a rare talent for counterfeiting and an arrogant confidence pitted his wits and skill against the best brains of the United States Secret Service.

Luis Eduardo DeShelley was so sure of himself that he spoke of Secret Service agents as "cops and squareheads."

DeShelley mastered the art of counterfeiting as an extra-curricular activity during his undergraduate days at the College of Albert LeGrande. He learned to blend a profound knowledge of painting, sculpture, chemistry, photography and engraving into almost-perfect bogus bills.

He set up shop in New York some 20 years ago, sent to France for paper of just the texture he needed and ran off $100,000 worth of fake French banknotes which soon were giving foreign exchange house the galloping gitters.

The Secret Service started closing in. Agents went down a hundred blind alleys and shook up a hundred innocent suspects before Secret Service sleuth Peter A. Rubano finally collared DeShelley at

COL. PUGH QUILTS AS C. D. OFFICIAL

Resigns As Executive Director
Of Morrisville
C. D. Council

MEETING IS CANCELLED

MORRISVILLE, Sept. 6.—Col. Irving E. Pugh, USA, Ret., yesterday resigned as executive director of the Morrisville Civil Defense Council, a post he has held since Dec. 22, 1950. Col. Pugh's resignation followed his appearance Tuesday at a special meeting of Morrisville Borough Council to urge that a previously scheduled joint meeting between the borough and defense councils be held.

The meeting, originally set for this evening, was cancelled by Mayor William Burgess, Jr., following the resignation of David West as defense council director.

It was understood that Col. Pugh sought the joint session to air complaints regarding the operation of the defense set-up.

In announcing his resignation, Col. Pugh said:

"I have been impelled to make this decision simply because the mayor and some others have thrown obstacles which have tended to impede my efforts to awaken my colleagues to their obligations they assumed on taking office."

"My conscience is clear in spite of what anyone may say. My headquarters staff worked long and hard to bring about some efficiency, while others were accomplishing nothing."

"Maybe as someone has said, 'You can't fight city hall,' but I shall try to do just that through county and state civil defense to bring a real civil defense program to Morrisville."

"GULLIVER" IS DEAD; HOODED SEAL CAUGHT HERE IS VICTIM OF SEPTICAEMIA; HEROIC EFFORT MADE AT PHILA. 'ZOO' TO SAVE HIM

Museum Anxiously Awaits Seal's Body

By International News Service
PITTSBURGH, Sept. 6.—(INS)—The Carnegie Museum in Pittsburgh, which is conducting a survey of mammals in Pennsylvania, is anxiously awaiting the remains of Mr. Gulliver, an errant seal whose travels took him from the Arctic regions down to the Delaware River at Bristol. The seal, taken from the river last month, died at the Philadelphia Zoo, from what authorities said was a blood infection. Gulliver, so-named by eight-year old Kitty Lou Lynn, of Bristol, was a hooded seal, the second of his species fished from the Delaware.

"Gulliver" is dead.

The sad news reached Bristol late yesterday afternoon that the young hooded seal, which chose to land in Bristol after its long swim from the North Atlantic area, had died yesterday afternoon at the Philadelphia zoological gardens.

Heroic efforts had been made by "zoo" officials ever since August 8th to save the seal's life. It was the morning of the 8th of August that Bristolians rubbed their eyes in disbelief when they sighted the seal on the float at the Elks home. When captured by means of a net a few hours later he was placed in a box, put aboard a truck, and was off to the Phila. "zoo."

Since then penicillin and aureomycin have been used in quantity in an endeavor to help the seal combat infection no doubt incurred through waters of the Delaware river. The seal, however, ate very little, consequently lost considerable weight and grew weaker.

"An autopsy showed that cause of death was septicemia, or infection of the blood stream" it was announced at the "zoo."

"We noticed that the seal appeared very sick, and he was taken out of the pool. He died a short time later" it was added.

The body is to be shipped to the Carnegie Museum at Pittsburgh, and it is the belief of "zoo" officials that the body will be stuffed and placed on exhibition.

Although all Bristolians have been "rooting" for "Gulliver," one who is particularly sorry to hear of his death is little "Kitty Lou" Lynn, McKimley street, who named him. "Kitty Lou," who suggested the name of "Gulliver" for the much-travelled seal, and thereby won The Bristol Courier's seal-naming contest, made a trip to the "zoo" on August 28th to visit "Gulliver."

He posed with "Kitty Lou" for a picture at that time.

Frederick Ulmer, curator of mammals at Phila. "zoo," spent day after day at the pool where the seal was kept, and he and assistants made heroic efforts to induce the seal to eat, made certain that it received its medicine, and did everything possible for its welfare.

FAIRLESS, Sept. 6.—The village of Fairless is fast becoming an attractive community. Those who have during the past month moved into the housing project which at present stretches from Hulmeville Road almost to the Lincoln Highway at Oxford Valley, are delighted to see that workmen have been pushing the laying of sidewalks along Hulmeville Road the past two days. With the stormy, holiday week-end behind them, the men started pouring concrete on Tuesday, and more forms were filled yesterday. The result by last evening was several hundred additional feet of sidewalks; and it is expected that the walks along Hulmeville Road will be practically completed by this evening.

Comments from families who have been residing at the new development for three or four weeks are quite favorable. The women are pleased over the fact that a school

Mr. Nehru has overlooked a basic rule of polite society. . . . A casual acquaintance invited to a wedding may properly send regrets but he is not supposed to tell the bride she could have done better.

The peace treaty which Nehru finds displeasing to him apparently is quite satisfactory to the Japanese, who seem to be the people most concerned. . . . If Nehru is on the side of peace he has a peculiar way of stirring up trouble to prove it.

Anyway, his absence from the Sept. 4 meeting in San Francisco leaves one seat vacant. . . . Now whom do you suppose we could invite, who hasn't been invited, who had a lot to do with framing the treaty and now lives in the Waldorf-Astoria in New York?

The trouble with Nehru is he is no Gandhi. . . . a quite common failing with big-shoe-illuders of which everyone but themselves seems to be aware.

NO AUSTERITY HERE!

There will be "nothing like austerity" in this country unless military mobilization goals are sharply raised. So says Defense Production Administrator Manly Fleischmann. He says as things look now civilian production will not be "cut drastically" from present rates and it should be possible to ease present controls by 1953.

That is reassuring, although the defense production program still is not eating up supplies of materials as it can and will. It is lagging somewhat, with the result the production index for July stood at 213 compared to 222 in June. Defense plants did not take up the slack caused by reductions in civilian output, so there was some unemployment and a loss in production.

If the trend has now been reversed, as officials seem to think, the reversal has been caused by expanding defense production. The program will bite deeper and deeper into supplies of essential materials. Changes that have already begun to show up plainly in consumer durable goods will become inescapable.

Meanwhile, the dollar is likely to look more and more enervated. But Americans do not face the same bleak prospect that the British and others are forced to live with. There is still hope that ever-increasing taxes will rouse the American people to action before they, too, will be but serfs of a socialist state. The great productive capacity of this country, if it is not allowed to disintegrate, will be the American people's salvation.

It is encouraging assurance that Mr. Fleischmann offers. But a vigilant and aroused public is needed to hold the bureaucrats responsible for continued high production.

GAINING ON A SCOURGE

Although epidemics of sleeping sickness, which attacks man as well as horse, have been rare in recent decades, there was a time when the nation's equine population was reduced by hundreds of thousands as the disease struck.

The U. S. Public Health Service now announces that the virus of encephalitis has been isolated from wild birds at its laboratories in Montgomery, Ala. This form of sleeping sickness is known as the "blind staggers." Isolation of the virus is the first step in successfully combating a scourge of this kind.

The isolation was made twice from redwing blackbirds and once from magpies.

Birds, which apparently do not contract the disease, act as carriers, according to the health service. Birds used in the experiments were caught near health service laboratories in Greeley, Colo. Apparently the disease is carried by mosquitoes, ticks and mites, the studies revealed.

Cases of the disease reported in the U. S. last year totaled 1,051, compared to 781 in 1949 and 575 in 1948. But many thousands of cases are believed to have gone unrecognized or to have been erroneously diagnosed as polio according to the health service.

"WASHINGTON REPORT"

By FULTON LEWIS, JR.
(Copyright, 1951
King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

ROME, Sept. 6

Italy's chief potential contribution to the North Atlantic Pact struggle against Communism is in manpower and unused industrial capacity.

In conversations this fall, with American and other western officials, Prime Minister Alcide de Gaspari will play them for all they're worth — which is plenty — in his efforts to get the existing Italian peace treaty scrapped, or at least, drastically revised.

Italy's goal is the elimination of treaty limitations on the size and strength of the Italian armed forces. If not that, a formal modification of the limitations, to permit a substantial contribution of military units for the western defense set-up.

Western powers have violently itching palms, to get into Italy's huge manpower reservoir, but Britain and the State Department are leary of any move toward formal treaty alterations. Russia is a signatory to the treaty, and they foresee an endless continuity of wrangling and roadblocks in any modification attempts.

British attitude is that a simpler method is better: Simply let Italy go ahead and build up her armed forces to the extent of her commitments under the North Atlantic Pact, with Downing Street and the State Department tacitly ignoring the violation of treaty limitations. A repugnant business to moral sensibilities, perhaps, but the Atlantic-Acheson wedlock is so devout it hardly would be fractured by such trivia. And the expectation here is that Mr. Acheson will follow through.

Signor de Gaspari doesn't like it. He and his government want to contribute manpower to the anti-Communist cause, but they want to do so openly and with full legality. Italy's unused industrial capacity is vastly greater than the average American would imagine — is de Gaspari's hole-card, in the coming autumn sessions. De Gaspari is also holding out a promise to the Allies regarding Italian trade with Moscow.

This is the final year of a three-year trade treaty negotiated by Italy and Russia in late 1945. Under it, Russia has furnished raw materials which Italy has processed into machinery such as lathes, electrical generators, milling machinery and railway spare parts.

In return for this processing job, Russia has paid Italy in the form of wheat, foods and other items which Italy needs badly.

There has been some criticism of Italy for this arrangement. But Italian government leaders justify it on the grounds that even though they themselves also dislike it, it has been the only means by which they could get the materials they sorely need. There have been hints that if we give them defense program orders, Italy might allow the Russian trade treaty to lapse at the end of this year.

Still another item which de Gaspari is expected to stress is Italy's continued plea for the return of Trieste — one point upon which all Italian political parties — even the Communists — are agreed.

Trieste is a much more important point to Italians than most Americans realize. Italy fought long and many thousands of lives to acquire that Adriatic port, and she feels that under those circumstances it is the height of injustice and folly for the western powers to even consider turning it over to a Communist nation, Yugoslavia.

Even the Italian Communists can, and do, support the demands for the return of Trieste, now that Marshal Tito is in such bad odor in Moscow.

Commander Robert E. Peary discovered the North Pole on April 6, 1909.

PLAYOFFS START IN SOFTBALL LEAGUE ON MONDAY NIGHT

Final playoffs of the Bristol Suburban Softball League will get under way Monday evening on Memorial field. The contesting teams are Fifth Ward Sporting Club and 3M's. The latter team won the regular season crown and drew a bye in the elimination playoffs.

Kaiser Metal Products protested the final game of its three-game series with Fifth Ward Sporting Club but at a meeting last evening, the protest board disallowed the protest, claiming that the umpires were right in awarding Joe Roe two bases after his base hit was blocked by a youngster. Kaiser Metal claimed that Roe should have been awarded three bases.

The second game of the Fifth Ward-3M's series will be played Wednesday evening, and the third game, if necessary, next Friday evening. In the event of rain, Tuesday and Thursday evenings will be used as playoff nights. All games will begin at six o'clock.

Former Missionary Nurse To Africa Will Be Speaker

NEWTOWN, Sept. 6 — The September 12th meeting of the Women's Guild, Newtown Presbyterian Church, will be marked by the presence of a former missionary nurse in Africa, Mrs. Philip J. May, of Ivyland. Mrs. May's husband, Dr. May, is now minister of the Presbyterian Church at Ivyland.

The Presbytery office announces that Mrs. May has a challenging message for the women of the denomination. Mrs. Albert H. Torongo, Sr., will preside, and devotionals will be in charge of Mrs. George L. Goehring, whose subject will be "What Is The Church?"

A covered dish luncheon will be served at one and the meeting will convene at two. Circle No. 3, Mrs. Frank Bouton, leader, will serve the luncheon, and also be in charge of flowers and the church nursery during the month.

God, The Nation's Guide
"God made His own people to go forth like sheep, and guided them in the wilderness like a flock."—(Psalm 78:52)

When Israel permitted God to lead, He made of that nation a great influence in human history. God leads not only individuals but nations when they put trust in Him.
Prayer: O God, Thou Who hast wrought wonders in the earth, help us to remember that nations need not fear when they trust in Thee. Thou dost lead us on safely and we need not fear. Thou wilt guide our nation, even as Israel, by the skillfulness of Thy hands. In the daytime Thou wilt lead us with a cloud, and all the night with a light of fire.

Help us also, O God, to give ear to Thy law, that it may become the law of our people. Incline our ears to the words of Thy mouth, not hiding them from our children, but showing them to the generations to come that they too may praise the Lord and trust Him for guidance.
Through Jesus Christ, Our Lord. Amen.
